FOREWORD

To chart Heidelberg with its dignity and traditions, to present through picture and prose a year of our college life, and to portray the truly democratic spirit which is a part of our campus, we the Class of 1941 present the AURORA.

Book One The College

Book Two ... Organizations

Book Three Athletics

Book Four School Life

Administration Building

Across The Campus . . .

■ College Hall stands like a sentinel on a triangle whose vertex reaches out into the world and whose base is grounded deep within the heart of the campus. During the day, students throng through "U" Building halls, laughing and joking or comparing notes with a worried frown. Chapel brings the singing of familiar hymns, worship, the presentation of a broad and complete view of life—and fellowship at the Pony Rail. At night, shadowy figures wander slowly through the corridors hand in hand while Doc Jo's office lamp burns brightly, and the tower is silhouetted against the moon.

Library

- The Library, famous as a rendezvous for per-less couples, now basks in the quiet introduced by the new regime and blazes with the lights reflected from the newly decorated walls. No longer do the students need frantic calls for silence or Diogenes with his out-moded lantern.
- Oldest yet newest of the women's dormitories, Keller Cottage was reopened this year to take care of the increased number of students on the campus. Its peppy inmates established a definite "Spirit of Keller Kotch" as clever yells, after dinner "sings," and feeds for the whole dorm set the pace.

Keller Cottage

Williard Hall

- The heart of romance when its porch is the scene of lingering good-nights, a hive of energy when the gym on third floor rocks with activity, and a home of epicures when the girls gather in the old dining room, Williard Hall has become a haunt of pleasant memories recorded by the mellow chiming of the grandfather clock.
- France Hall, beautiful and aristocratic, has a personality determined by the busy comings and goings of the seventy women who live within her walls. Eight o'clock rushes, afternoon rendezvous in the vestibule, "lit" meetings, whispered goodnights, and even all-night cramming for exams are a part of her inimitable charm.

France Hall

Commons

■ In contrast to the more ordinary routine of serving three meals a day to Heidelberg's male population are the many social gatherings which transform the Commons from a work-a-day college hall to a dreamland or a flower garden, to a penthouse or a night club, to a South Sea Island or a legendary wonderland—the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde building of the campus: a commons by day, an Aladdin's palace by night.

Science Hall

■ Most beautiful in the fall when its ivy covering is crimson, the Science Hall is a curious mixture of pleasant recollections of hours spent behind the circular walk and of distasteful odors seeping forth from the laboratories. While the rest of the school buries itself among books, the students at the Science Hall prefer to absorb their knowledge by osmosis.

Founders Hall

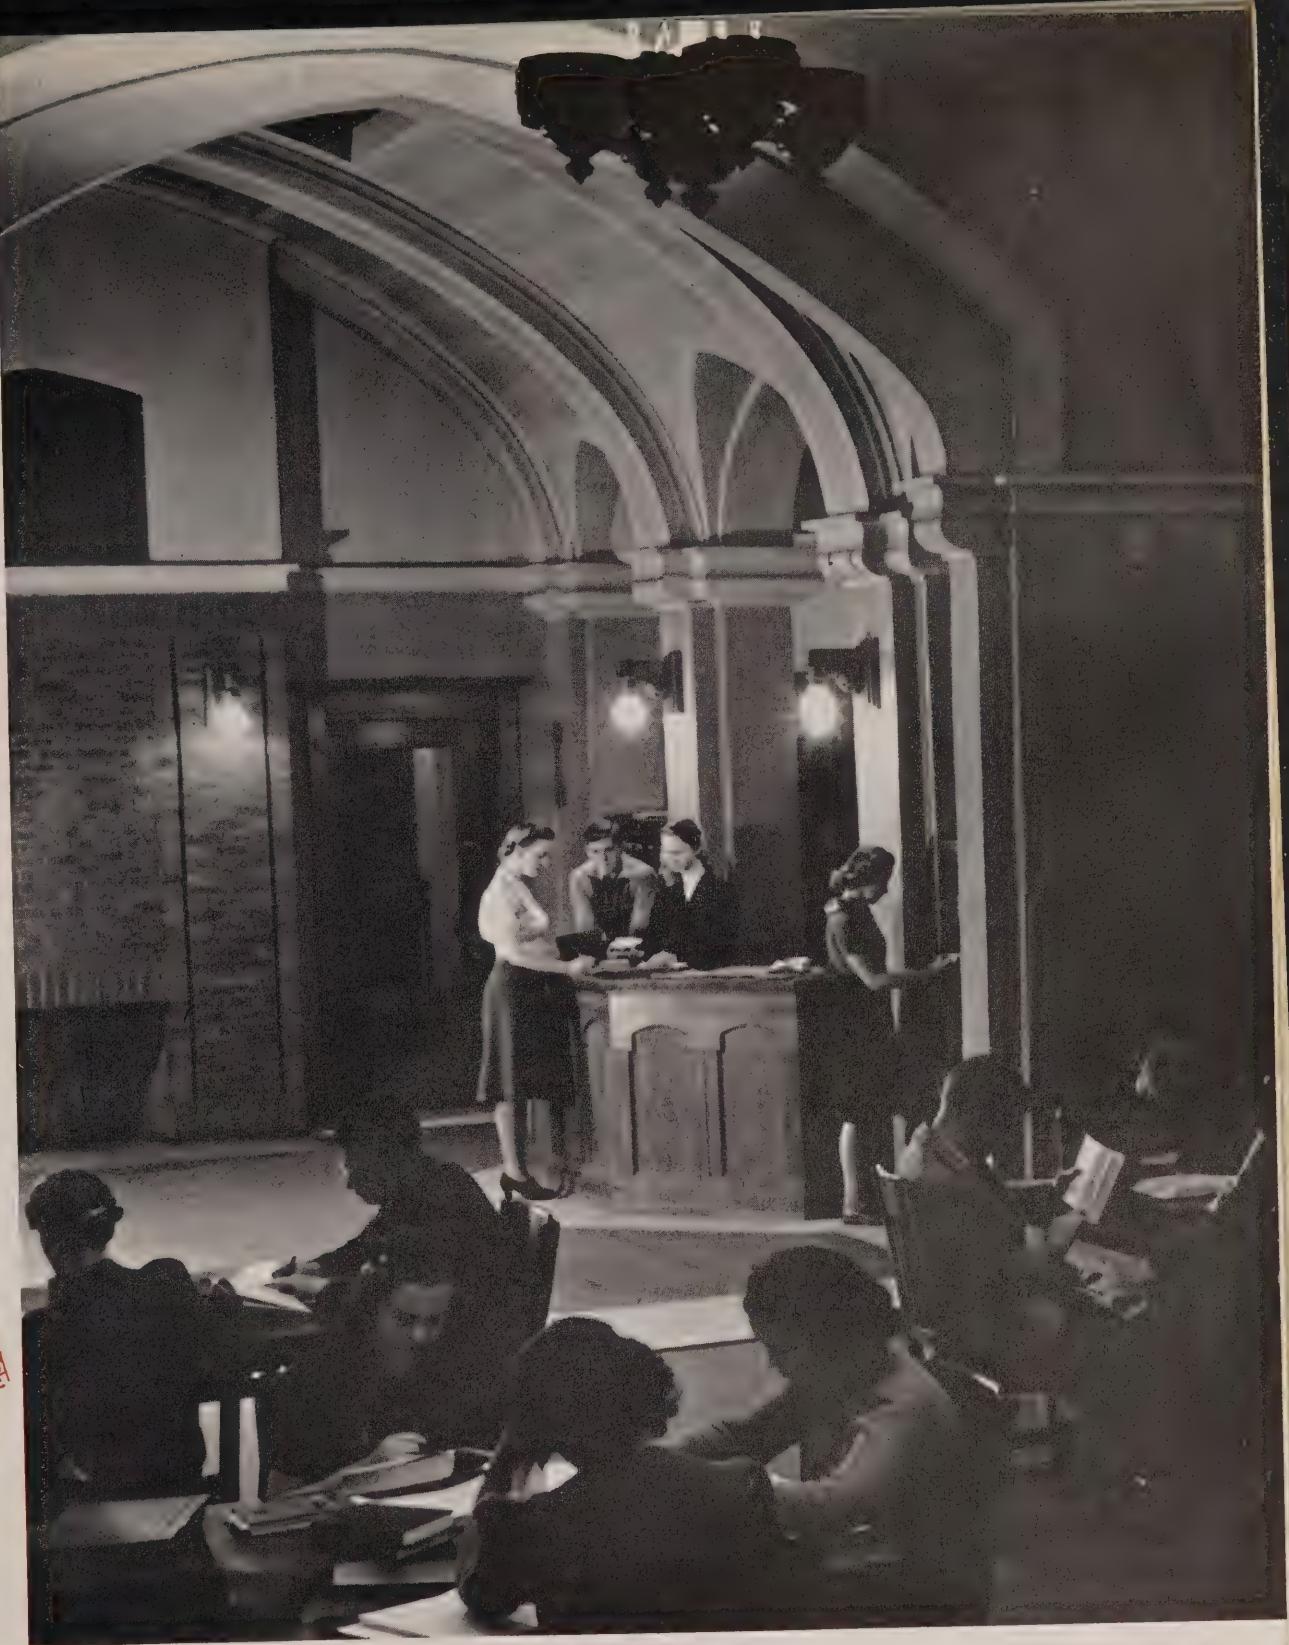

■ Enclosing the dormitory for freshman men, classrooms, and the Little Theater, the sides of Founders fairly bulge with activity. Hours of sleeping when everyone else is awake, hours of activity when everyone else is asleep—these would make an ordinary structure old before its time. But Founders, the oldest of the campus halls, miraculously preserves a sturdy life amid dramatic productions, history dates, and water fights.

■ Piloted by the smooth-working Shinn-McDowell combination, Heidelberg's student governing body spent a hectic year in its attempt to deal with vital student problems.

In addition to its usual social leadership, which included supervision of Open Houses, All-College Dances, Dad's Day, and May Day, the Council rose to new heights as a deliberative body. Many hours of fiery debating resulted in a sweeping Commons investigation and the initiation of mixed dining, condemnation of politics in student elections, a petition backing the Kil in its fight for free speech, and the gaining, through a new constitution, of greater student cooperation with the faculty.

Senior Honor Society

■ With the December eighth edition of the Kil the student body learned that the supposedly stronger sex had triumphed in the Class of 1940's "battle of wits," claiming seven out of the nine newly elected members of the only all-college honorary scholastic society on our campus. The fourth year of work brought public acclaim and the recognition of meritorious work to the leading students which culminated in the annual honor society banquet where each member was duly initiated into his rightful place. When President Wilson and Secretary Luckring had been duly elected, the society adjourned for the year to be called together again only for the AURORA picture.

AN INTIMATE GLANCE INTO ORGANIZED

ACTIVITY OUTSIDE THE CLASSROOM ►

Aptonalton Literary Society

■ Fall brought with it for Aptonalton this year the task of redecorating its hall. From the opening of the term, the Aps scoured the community for bargains, as with the smooth tongue of Silverman and the determination of Kissling they strove to out-wit Tiffin businessmen. Weeks of hard work followed, until at last one week after Homecoming, the college, eager to view the results of all this effort, turned out en masse at the inaugural open house.

After the society adopted a new Greek name, Alpha Phi Tau, they trekked to the Commons for their annual winter formal. This year members of other societies were invited, however, and the dance was highly successful in that it fostered better fellowship among the men on the campus.

Hell Week came with its usual headaches for the bosses, to be closed on a high plane with the stag at the Shawhan following the formal initiation.

The annual dinner dance at Mohawk Country Club rang down the curtain on one of the most successful years in Aptonalton's brief history.

■ Following custom, the white-vested ones started the term with a Highland Fling held at Highbanks. During the year they busied themselves with various social functions: among others, a tea for Isabelle Wade, the hay-ride which was rained into a dance at the Commons, and the Hangover Open House between semesters. True to its name, the society held literary and business meetings every Friday. On Homecoming Day the Euglossians exercised their monopoly on the chrysanthemum market. The traditional George Washington banquet was eaten and spoken at the Elks Club in Fremont. At the Palm Sunday breakfast, members fried or burned eggs to their individual tastes.

After Easter came pledging and initiation, with its curious combination of paddles, rings, and violets, crowned with a wiener roast for good fellowship. Sophomores entertained the pledges with a party and a dance later in the spring. Last of all came a banquet honoring Senior Eugs orally and materially and launching them from Euglossia's protecting arms.

Excelsior Literary Society

■ Here's to all good Exes! Again they have furnished color to Heidelberg's campus by their garish jackets and never ending antics. A somber fall stag—midwinter intramural victories—a new phonograph—sweetheart serenades—evenings in the hall—spring pledging—all made this another memorable year for Excelsior.

The honors reaped by the red and green in this season and last were both athletic and academic. Among the more dubious, however, was the position of head waiter at the Commons and a place on the "Big Three." Originality was theirs when they presented two dance bands at the winter formal—one colored, the other well led by Heidelberg's only student band leader, one of their own members. The Exes set a precedent when they invited the other societies to an Open House in the hall. It is truly an honor to the society to have overcome with a laugh the disappointing one-point defeats at the hands of the Friendly Heids to whom they frequently responded with a quaint ditty to the tune of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Even the continual blare from the hall across the Pony Rail did nothing to daunt the Ex spirit.

■ Inspired by the chance revelation that Louis Napoleon, Pope Pius IX, and Bishop Hughes of New York were honorary members of their brotherhood, the Heidelberg Literary Society has carried out an ambitious program to maintain the high traditions of its eighty-one year history.

Not long after the fall stag at Camp Pittenger, members and their friends trucked to the music of Ernie Duffield at the annual Christmas dance. Braving a chilling rain, the clan then gathered outside the girls' dorms in the early morning hours to express their love in song. Baskets of candy served as a further bribe for affection.

In addition to displaying past and present Heid talent, the annual Open House Program revealed to over one hundred visitors new hall furniture and a beautiful radio.

The lengthy debates over Frosh pledges provided excellent training for future congressmen, while the crop of neophytes accounted for four sleepless nights, a host of new friends, and a highly successful pledge dance.

Seeking permanent possession of the Comstock Trophy, Heid teams fought hard and well throughout the varied intramural sports program.

As 1940 drew to a close, Nu Sigma Alpha feted its departing seniors at the yearly June banquet.

Heidelberg Literary Society

Hesperian Literary Society

■ Fun and frolic started early last fall, when with exuberant spirits, the Star Gazers, started off with a picnic in the country. Companiable literary meetings followed their weekly course as fall drifted into winter. Donning evening dresses and other fancy furbelows, the girls made their way to the Penthouse Prance, where bright lights and brilliant showers of notes issued forth from the streamlined dance pavilion.

Winter sped on, emphasized by frequent Blackouts at the Open House sponsored for the whole campus. And who proved a more noble gentleman, and more perfect escort than His Honor, St. Patrick, as he entertained each fair damsel in his own individual Hollywood style? April pledging brought most interesting results, as new faces, new friends, and new associations sprang up. A few weeks later, the spirit of romance ruled when whisked away on a magic carpet into Arabian nights Hesses and their partners swayed to melodic strings at the dance in honor of the initiate members. Another picnic and the Annual Spring Banquet concluded the year of frolic, and the Star Gazers turned toward home.

■ Following tradition, Philalethea extended her hospitality to her active sisters, alumnae, and faculty women at an informal tea in early September. A sophisticated Phi Doe roamed the gardens of the Hopple home and had great fun playing cards on the lawn.

At different times throughout the year the desire to have a get-together was realized: the literary sessions were often "dressed-up" by being given as teas with the productions as entertainment; in January, boys and girls stepped lightly at the Kitten Kaper in their pussy breeches and cat's pajamas; southern customs, drawling talk, and even the sleepy time of the South formed a setting for the Phi Belles at the banquet, "Plantation Echoes."

Although the pledges endured some rough moments in initiation, the pledge dance and yellow rose buds for the neophytes again showed real Phi generosity.

The seniors bade their last good-bye to Philalethea and all her sisters with tearful voices at the June banquet. This come and Phis go, but in their coming in and going out they always follow the motto, "Do Ye Beste."

Y. W. C. A.

■ In a joint meeting with the Y. M. Cabinet at Camp Pittenger before school opened in September, the girls made plans for what proved to be a highly successful year even though organizational cooperation with the men was still in its first stages. Big Sisters made themselves useful during Freshman Week for which the Big and Little Sister Tea was the climax. Throughout the year, cabinet meetings were held each Monday night to allow bills and to discuss plans for carrying on the many projects which were attempted. Local missionary efforts included a Christmas party for Tiffin poor children, the dressing of dolls for the Fort Wayne Orphan's Home, and the sponsoring of rummage sales in the spring and fall for the sending of an underprivileged child to camp. In the foreign missionary field there were the drive for funds for Huping, China, and the sacrifice dinner for the Far Eastern Student Relief Fund sponsored by Dr. T. Z. Koo.

OF A THURSDAY MORNING

CABINET IN THE COMMONS

The Y. W.'s biggest project was the Spring Training Conference which brought women from seventeen other colleges to our campus for the last weekend in April. The conference theme, "Rediscovering Essentials of Cooperation", was presented by Miss Helen Battick, Dean of Women of the University of Akron.

■ Highlighted by the nocturnal visit of a stray sheep, the annual freshman over-nite get-together at Camp Pittenger climaxed the Y. M. C. A.'s welcome to the class of '43. By means of Big Brothers, the Freshman Handbook, and numerous social affairs, Heidelberg's newcomers had previously found a host of friends during that memorable first week in college.

The spirit of fellowship and sociability continued to grow through the year as the "Y" held barn dances, folk sings, and a splash party.

Well-attended Sunday evening vespers services sponsored in cooperation with the Y. W., including a special Christmas program and the first Student Communion Service in recent years during Holy Week, inspired students to find a Christian answer to the problems of our living. A gospel team carried this work to numerous communities beyond the campus.

Lectures and discussions under the direction of nationally known leaders, attendance at worthwhile conferences, and the annual sacrifice dinner filled out a well-rounded year's program.

Heidelberg Concert Choir

■ Bearing the name of Heidelberg east to Philadelphia and south to Washington, the Concert Choir of forty selected voices enjoyed its second annual extended tour during the mid-term recess. A setting for the Lord's Prayer, specially dedicated to the Choir, gave new impetus to the group as it presented a program of sacred and secular numbers, ably directed as always by Professor Ebersole. For the second straight year management of the tour was left to the ingenuity of Wilhelm.

But, in addition to the singing, the members on tour enjoyed a life unique and interesting for itself. Where else could Aigler have improvised in his own distinctive style—and get away with it, where else would a Yiddish dialect have escaped intolerance, where else could the marriage of Eddy and Bernhardt by Chaplain Klinefelter have taken place?

Despite the hard work and the headaches, membership in the Concert Choir is a goal well worth striving for, and memories of joyful singing will linger long in the hearts of the fortunate.

■ Organized for the first time this year, the College Choir has been important in filling a definite need on the campus. Previously there had been no opportunity for students to enjoy the pleasure of group-singing if they were unable for any reason to attain membership in

The Choir practiced nearly every week and contributed materially to the success of Handel's "Messiah" at Christmas-time, when they assisted the Concert Choir in this undertaking.

The value of the College Choir is not to be underestimated, not only for the inherent good in itself, but also because henceforth membership in the group will be prerequisite for the membership of upperclassmen in the Concert Choir.

Music Masters of Heidelberg

■ To the football games went the musical bellhops of Heidelberg. People cheered as Shertzer With the Flying Skirt led the Student Princes down the field in a big "H". Stopping before the stands, the band played "Sweet Alma Home" under the direction of Don Swalley, president of the organization.

Monday nights found Professor Behrens at the regular practices waving the stick and smoothing out the rough places. In addition to this unconscious humor, all enjoyed the announcements and plans for future trips.

Especially enjoyable were the long jaunts to Kent State and to Kenyon after which the season came to an excellent close with a formal banquet at the Shawhan Hotel.

■ Every Wednesday evening the Conservatory vibrated with the efforts of the Heidelberg String Ensemble as Professor Behrens demonstrated the finer points of bouncing bow and pizzicato.

This year's program began when the ensemble accompanied the chorus of one hundred and twenty-five voices in the performance of the "Messiah." The spring concert in March marked the high point of the season. With Marian Lutterbein as accompanist and Russell Griebel as concert master, selections by Beethoven, Borodine, and others were presented. Then, Miss Harriet Keller gave a masterful interpretation of Beethoven's Concerto in E-flat with Professor Gibson playing additional orchestral parts on the organ. In May, the ensemble, seated on the Common's lawn, played soft music to give atmosphere for May Day festivities.

■ The annual fall picnic at Hassler's served as a gay beginning for that highly artistic group known as the Triad Club. October passed quietly, and then Mr. Myron B. Smith of Washington and late of Islam descended on our campus. In keeping with his general policy of "enlightenment," Mr. Smith devoted two hours to the Triad Club, playing records of Islamic music.

The conservatory put on its Christmas dress of candles and tinsel for the annual Christmas Musicale. January was ushered in with a reception for Vera Gillette and Vincent Micari, charming duo-pianists. In March after the ratification of a new constitution, the incoming freshmen entertained the Club in an eighteenth century drawing room. The formal spring banquet brought the year to a fitting close.

"HAVE YOU TRIED WHEATIES?"

Creators of Campus Chronicles

■ After weeks of interviewing engravers in the spring, shooting pictures at May Day and Commencement, and planning the dummy during the summer, work on the AURORA really began with the opening of school in September. One after another Mr. Dandurand clicked off student portraits, but returned proofs brought remarks: "Did you ever see such pictures?" "Well, we didn't have much to work with." Then came informal shots and hours of poring over the card catalog: "Do you mean that all those pictures are posed? How disillusioning!"

Staff meetings brought more plans, discussions of which pictures should bleed and where they should be cut. "The cover? Oh, it's to be terra cotta—you know, the color the catalog gives for the Williard Hall roof." And then came the literary work with Beck as the right hand man and Nelson having to do all the athletic writeups because no one else could duplicate his style. At last Dr. Lemke gave his scrutinizing glance and assurance on points like the plural of "rendezvous." Captioning brought more problems with puns flying thick and fast, but finally everything was completed, and with galley proof and then page proof O-Kayed, a year's work went to press.

■ Weathering storms of controversy, the student-published KILIKILIK lived up to its reputation of providing never a dull moment for its many readers.

The creation of an editorial board to share in policy direction, the development of a clearly stated constitution, the training of eager Frosh candidates, and the instituting of a new system of competition to aid in the selection of editor comprised Editor Long's "first semester plan" to improve staff organization and the mechanics of publication.

Bill's "second semester plan" for developing a hard-hitting, thought stimulating editorial page met with serious difficulty. As a result of a furor raised over unrestrained expression of student opinions, the editor resigned from the staff, only to be unanimously elected "Editor Emeritus" at a staff banquet given in his honor. Al Wilhelm was chosen by the faculty to inherit the "hot seat!"

In April the KILIKILIK delegates attended the O. C. N. A. Conference at Kent, and Bill Long presided as president of that organization.

Behind the scenes the business staff worked tirelessly week after week getting ads and collecting, to assure the financial success of each issue.

Wig and Masque

Without instruction or elaborate stage necessities, frosh Wig and Masque neophytes early this year displayed characteristic dramatic club ability. Vyv's and Margie's love scene from "Cavalcade" and Essig's weak reaction toward McCoy in a scene from the "Warrior's Husband" gave Supervisor Allman early assurance of a successful year.

Despite hilarious times in some of the meetings, the main purpose of Wig and Masque was to develop an understanding and appreciation of plays and to give the students a chance to express themselves dramatically. For this reason, members alternated in presenting plays of exceptionally high calibre for the enjoyment of all, benefiting from each preceding performance. Some of the more outstanding plays on which the club directed its efforts were: "Overtones," "Little Women," the third act of Ibsen's "Ghosts," "Rip Van Winkle," and "East Lynne." A scene from the last of these and an accompanying act by Shirey and Ugino were thoroughly enjoyed by the student body in an assembly program.

Although not really a Wig and Masque production, "St. Claudia," which was given in various towns throughout the country, had a cast which consisted entirely of club members this year.

The first performance of the 1940 season of the Zeta Upsilon cast of Alpha Psi Omega was enacted competently by three veterans before an exclusive audience—Professor Hopkins—on the evening of January 10. It was a "First Nighter" for five thespians of Wig and Masque, and the apprentices were duly impressed by the solemnity of the Little Theater and the formal dress of the gentlemen and ladies upon the occasion of initiation.

Planning and executing an evening's entertainment for the Wig and Masque Club, the first duty of the neophytes, kept them busy for several weeks. When the comedy was presented, the audience received it enthusiastically. On April 11, the society played hosts to the National Thespian High School Play Festival, and the next performance on the bill was a Tri-State Convention in Clarion, Pennsylvania, on April 26 and 27.

The Omega of the season repeated the Alpha with a request performance of the initiation ceremony for those who had proved worthy during the year.

Debate

■ Continuing to uphold high standards, Men's and Women's Debate Squads carried the name of Heidelberg far and wide during a very active year. Blessed with a large, capable squad, Coach Hopkins arranged a schedule consisting of five tournaments, a radio debate, and innumerable practice clashes.

Attempting to "solve" the problem of economic and military isolation from nations at war, the team closed the first semester's program by taking fourth place in the Ohio Conference Championship.

After ranking high in an all-day session at Bowling Green, Heidelberg took first honors in the Great Lakes Tournament at Berea, Ohio, during March. In the National Pi Kappa Delta Tournament at Knoxville, Tennessee, however, Heidelberg found the competition much stronger, and finished with a record of four wins and as many reverses.

The extensiveness and the success of the squads' activities is revealed by the year's record of forty-six victories as against twenty-two losses gained in competition with colleges from Nebraska, Texas, Oklahoma, Georgia, California, South Dakota, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and Ohio.

■ Small in number, but great in ambition is Heidelberg's Beta Chapter of Pi Kappa Delta, national honorary debate society. Pledged to encourage the art of persuasion in a gentlemanly manner, this organization played host, during the year, to the Women's State Oratorical Contest, conducted the annual high school debate tournament, and supervised class and inter-society speech contests.

Gathering at the traditional midwinter banquet, members welcomed three new pledges who had met the minimum requirement of participating for two years in intercollegiate debates, or of qualifying for the state oratorical contest.

The call of Tennessee's towering mountains and beautiful girls, of debates with teams from all corners of the nation, of new friends, and of a twelve hundred mile auto jaunt lured five members and Coach "Hoppy" to the biennial national convention in Knoxville.

As a fitting conclusion to an active year, the Tri-School banquet afforded an opportunity for exchanging anecdotes, for seeking consolation after "unfair" decisions, and for planning a bigger and better program during 1941.

Education Club

■ After fourteen years of experience, the Education Club is the best first-hand means of getting knowledge about the teaching field for students nearing the "open road" of the profession. This year, for the first time, associate membership was offered to freshmen and sophomores planning to be teachers.

The Education Club is the copartner of Kappa Delta Pi in bringing leaders from the various fields of education to the campus. This year's program included regular meetings with lectures about the one hundredth anniversary of teacher training, the types of schools, the position of the school and the home, and public interviews of prospective teachers.

The high point of the year came with the Educational Conference on our campus in March. Members of the club gave their support to the success of the two-day session, the theme of which centered on "Education and the Public." Outstanding speakers obtained by Professor Williams presented the addresses and conducted the forums about education and its relationship to agriculture, labor, and industry.

The season ended with a tour through the Hayes Memorial and a dinner at Gavitt's Tea Room. Filled mentally and physically, student teachers went forth to educate.

■ Early in October the education students who had been honored with membership in Kappa Delta Pi gathered at Kniestric's Tea Room for their initiation dinner. Professor Williams, counselor, answered the questions, WHO, WHAT, WHY in regard to Kappa Delta Pi: The WHO in the Alpha Psi Chapter are the education students who have met the necessary requirements in scholarship and social efficiency; the WHAT is the national scope, background, and function of the society; the WHY is the ideal of better teachers and teaching in the future—the aim of the fraternity.

During the year Kappa Delta Pi, co-operating with the Education Club, held monthly meetings presenting a broad and complete outlook on the field of education from varying points of view. In February, President Jack Boyd, who represented the chapter at the Thirteenth Biennial Convocation of Kappa Delta Pi in St. Louis, brought back viewpoints of new trends in education.

At the time of the Educational Conference, seven eligible juniors were elected to active membership. The occasion was celebrated by a dinner at Kniestrick's.

The final meeting of the year was the alumni banquet in the Green Room of the Shawhan.

■ In speaking of the History Club, Professor Smith remarked casually—"Yes, we have weathered many a storm, but we have always passed through each gale successfully, and to-day we are still functioning as the oldest departmental group on the campus."

Throughout the year, the members have devoted much time to reports and extensive work on historical and political events—thus keeping abreast with the times.

It is also the policy of the club to secure outside speakers. Last fall Mr. Tappan Rodgers gave a most interesting illustrated talk on his Mediterranean and African cruise. Later in the year, Mr. Myron Smith of the Library of Congress, spoke on the Art and Culture of Persia. More recently, Judge Vinton Bennehof explained the question of Juvenile Delinquency.

The last meeting in June is always a social one, for at that time Professor Smith entertains the club with a "fry" and a treasure hunt, and each senior signs his name in the secretary's book.

■ This year's crop of Home Economics girls will certainly make Grandma look to her laurels. These jolly homemakers have studied, cooked, and designed until home economics has become their second name. Lectures and demonstrations have played the largest part in the regular meetings. Early last fall, all those interested in the near-future buying of silverware found the lecture given by Mr. Comstock of utmost interest. The demonstration on Yeast and Quick Breads proved to be of interest to those moderns who desire to stir up a loaf of bread in a half hour or less. But Christmas brought everything we love best; snow flurries, fancy dainties, and most important, the Annual Christmas Dance. As for the April Showers that dashed throughout the campus, the Spring Style Show made the biggest possible splash. Crowning and surpassing all events of the year, came the meeting when Mrs. Ott gave an illustrated lecture on Dress and Personality. At that same time a Buffet Luncheon, presented by Miss Boehr and the Home Economics Club, honored the ever-beloved Miss Schaad, who bade goodbye to active service in the college and in the Home Economics Club.

Spanish Club

■ Membership in the Spanish Club is open to all students of the Spanish language. Its purpose is to create interest in things of Spain and Latin America as well as to complement class work by programs dealing with the life, literature, and customs of Spanish-speaking countries. The business meetings are conducted entirely in the "mother tongue" under the tutelage of Miss Osterholm.

Throughout the year the Club has had a number of interesting meetings held usually at the Home Economics House. The first was a treasure hunt. At the Christmas party the members followed the Mexican tradition and manner of giving gifts at the "nacimiento" or manger scene. For their initiation, the first year students had to present at the beginning of the second semester a program entirely in Spanish.

The year closed with a Pan American Day program in chapel and the annual banquet in the spring. This year the banquet, which was planned by the officers, Martin Sargent, Nevin Roeck, and Jean Fager, had a Mexican theme.

■ "Videre vitam ut erat," the purpose of the Classics Club, was reflected in the year's activities of these Greek and Latin students as they gathered to gain a better understanding of modern society by studying classical civilization.

In the fall, after the themes and backgrounds had been explained, the Club doubly enjoyed a musicale of selections inspired by the classics. An April trip to the Cleveland Museum of Art, where Doctor Kramer knew more than the guide, continued the cultural portion of the year's program.

But the year's activities were not all serious, for in the winter the organization gathered at the Home Economics House to enjoy a Roman dinner in the original manner. Inconveniences like knives and forks were abolished as sticky fingers, the true Roman eating implements, adorned the hands of all the members. Rome must have been agreeably surprised to hear the news of its day as the banquet speeches in imitation broadcast combined the ancient past and the present.

A play, given entirely in Latin, and a gay up-to-date picnic completed the season's program.

The Senior Laureate

■ Membership in the senior women's honorary society, the Senior Laureate, is one of the highest honors a girl can receive at Heidelberg, since members must meet the high scholarship, leadership, and personality standards set by the organization.

This year's program began in September with the dinner given by Miss Partridge at Kniestrick's where Eleanor Stibitz was elected president and plans were made for the year. Dad's Day brought the entertainment of the girls on the campus by a parody of "The Women" at which Goons, Glamour Girls, Cats, and Personality Girls vied with each other all evening in various activities. The Senior Laureate's first and only chapel program was "nestled, nay sandwiched" between more prosaic assemblies.

The night before the Lantern Drill both active and alumnae members gathered at a banquet to reminisce and to choose the candidates for next year's Senior Laureate. The Lantern Drill brought the giving of a scholarship to a worthy sophomore girl as well as the tapping of junior girls for membership.

Football and cheering went hand in hand this year with a fighting team spirit reflected in the cheering section and its peppy leaders. Four of the veterans returned to the ranks—Al Wilhelm, head cheer leader, Cokie Krammes, Peggy Wolstagel, and Wheaties Andrews. But more strength was added by the addition of Elo Omwake, Doris Shirey, Jack Bernhardt, Hank Boice, and Jim Galbraith.

Cheerleading took on a colorful note when new white sweaters adorned with orange megaphones made their appearance on the girls and the boys got red sweaters and trousers to match.

The "Four Fights" again became the most popular cheer when Wheaties' gymnastic feats passed into the realm of the unbelievable.

The purpose of this group is to foster good feeling among its members and to promote the fellowship which comes from taking the knocks together. New members are initiated at a banquet held during commencement week and here plans are made for the formation of more redoubtable teams for the following year.

The Football Season

■ Gaining experience for future grid battles was the chief objective of the Student Princes of 1939. Not one man who was recognized as a regular by the end of the season will be lost in 1940.

The team opened play October 6 against Ashland on Armstrong Field, where amid a sea of mud, they made an encouraging beginning in winning a 14-6 decision, which was more one-sided than the score indicates. Midway in the opening period, the Princes scored after a concerted drive with Nelson going over the pay-off stripe. After losing a second touchdown with the ball on the Ashland one-yard line as the half-time gun sounded, the Tri-Color came back to lengthen their lead 14-0 as George Timko caught a pass behind the goal line. Jim Turney converted both extra points with place kicks.

Lack of reserves began to take its toll as the team engaged Kent State. After holding the massive Golden Flashes to a 6-0 three-quarter score, the smaller Tiffinites wilted and lost, 19-0.

Undoubtedly the best game the Student Princes displayed all year was against Ohio Northern before a large Homecoming crowd. Although out-weighed and out-manned, the scrappy Heidelbergers held off defeat until the final two minutes when a Northern pass into the end zone connected, resulting in a 7-0 defeat.

Next the team journeyed to Mount Vernon for a night game with Kenyon College. The expected let-down after three consecutive hard struggles arrived on schedule, and the listless gridders were rather hard put to eke out a 9-0 victory. Then too, the injury jinx began to make itself felt as Bob Brodbeck, Miller, and Brand were out because of injuries, and Nehls, ace defensive end, withdrew from school. In the face of all this, it took a forty-yard sprint by Sharrock and some beautiful defensive end-play by Zalar to pull this conflict out of the fire.

Nelson joined the fast growing hospital brigade after the game at Mount Vernon where he sustained a broken hand. This necessitated the return of Zalar to the fullback position and the installation of Bill Galloway at left end, as Mount Union came to town on Dad's Day. The Purple Raiders had a field day as they passed the Tri-Color dizzy in registering a 34-0 victory.

At this stage of the season, Coach Turney, dissatisfied with the team's offense, brought out the old wooden paddle. This weapon immediately made its presence felt as Capital came to participate in a nip-and-tuck duel. Poor officiating and bad breaks handed the game to the visitors, 20-0. Turney's men exhibited snappier offensive blocking and more drive in the interference in this game.

Heidelberg had a chance to look at one of Ohio's outstanding aggregations at New Concord the next week. Muskingum was the team, and the Princes looked them over only as they sailed by often enough to post a 55-0 victory. Here was a team that blocked, not to "take 'em out" but to "lay 'em out."

Zalar played a fine game but eventually sustained a dislocated thumb that kept him out of the Detroit Tech game the following week. The woefully crippled squad absorbed a bad beating by a 52-0 score in this game. When the score was 33-0 against his first stringers, Coach Turney experimented with a sophomore team which worked surprisingly well to hold the Detroiters to two touchdowns the whole second half.

In the final game of the season, played against Bethany, West Virginia, Heidelberg backs gained yardage all over the field except inside the Bethany ten-yard line. Heidelberg contributed eight fumbles in this territory while Bethany converted her only scoring chances into a 13-0 victory. Salty Peters, a season-long third stringer, broke in in a blaze of glory as he completed pass after pass to lead the second team into scoring territory, only to be stopped by the final gun.

Viewing the season as a whole, one must postpone a decision as to its success or failure until the sophomores and juniors who composed the team have closed their careers. Judged by the improvement which they showed throughout the season, 1940 and 1941 should be banner years in Heidelberg football if matrimony and eligibility will stay in their respective back yards.

Freshman Football

The Freshman football squad of 1939 consisted of a band of hard-hitting yearlings who ended the season, in which they traded body-blocks with the varsity, by whipping the sophomore team, 13-0, in the annual classic. Glen Peterman, stocky halfback from Barberton, crashed over for the first touchdown and also kicked the extra point. Jim Marinis, a home town boy, provided the chief thrill of the game when he broke through the middle of the line and ran forty-five yards for a touchdown in the last period.

Perhaps the most promising discoveries of the year, however, were in the forward wall. Here, Center Folino, End Hossler, and Tackle Wearstler gave the upperclassmen plenty of trouble. At the end of the season Folino was elected honorary captain. Other candidates who showed considerable promise and who will be back to push varsity men next fall were Wolfe, Balser, and Schibetta in the backfield and Heglaw, Stewart, and Cellini in the line.

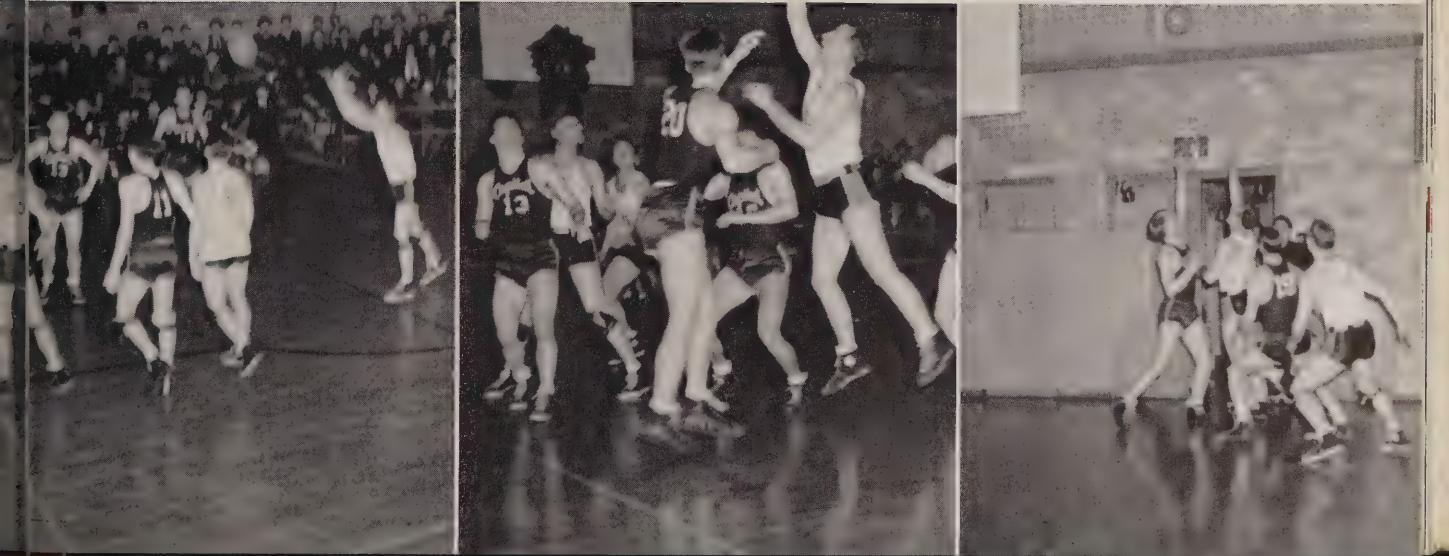

The Basketball Season . . .

■ Last December, Coach Turney viewed his assembled basketball candidates and realized what a tough assignment he faced. Only one of the boys was a letterman and, although several of the others had had bits of experience, most of them were green to college basketball.

The team opened the season with Ohio Chiropody of Cleveland and proved that it was not to be taken lightly, as they won, 45-32. Karl Zalar opened what was to be a banner season for himself by scoring 15 points, while Harmon and Nelson notched 12 apiece.

Next, the Hilltoppers engaged in the invitational blind tourney at Findlay with Denison, Ohio Northern, and the host college. Here, a rangy Denison team pulled out a 34-25 decision, and in the consolation our boys sustained a 44-31 loss to Findlay. Things looked dark, but a game the next night in Cleveland resulted in a 43-39 win over Fenn College.

Then came a long victory famine in which lack of height, inexperience, and bad breaks combined to give the Tricolor twelve straight defeats. The teams registering triumphs over us were Bowling Green twice, 57-33 and 53-28; Mount Union, 55-27; Muskingum, 64-54; Ashland, 52-41; Kenyon, 51-48; Ohio Northern, 51-44; Findlay, 50-43; Wooster, 68-33; and Findlay 33-32. Big Conrad Prasher joined the team after the Wooster debacle and brought with him a supply of much needed energy. Then, too, Karl Zalar continued to score consistently and as the team functioned more smoothly each week, it became only a question of time before victory again would be attained. Wittenberg, one of Ohio's strongest teams, led by only three points with scant minutes to go and won by only six points. Some very dubious officiating which sent most of Heidelberg's starting five to the bench enabled Findlay to eke out a 33-32 score after trailing all the way.

Eventually, this game basketball club "crashed" through with a win over Capital, 49-44. "Crashed" is the correct word as every man on the floor hustled every minute of the way in piling up a 24-8 half-time margin over the bewildered Lutherans. This victory acted as a shot in the arm when the confident squad journeyed to Ashland to upset the Strong Eagles, 55-52, in overtime. Karl Zalar tied the Tiffin city and college scoring record with a 22 point spree.

A cocky Kenyon outfit was the next to receive a thumping as the grim Hilltoppers avenged an earlier defeat by racking up a lop-sided 61-46 decision. The season closed with a tight, high-scoring defeat by Toledo DeSales in that City.

Karl Zalar, honorary captain for the year, tallied 207 points to break the city scoring record and Phil Nelson, junior guard, received honorable mention on the All-Ohio team picked by the newspaper services. Among the outstanding players, Prasher, Harmon, Clark, and Hoerneman showed best while Henning, Culp, Auck, and Black filled in capably. The athletic council awarded ten letters this year. Every man on the squad will return next season and, pepped up by that whirlwind finish, and bolstered by a strong freshman crew, they should constitute one of Ohio's better teams next year.

Baseball

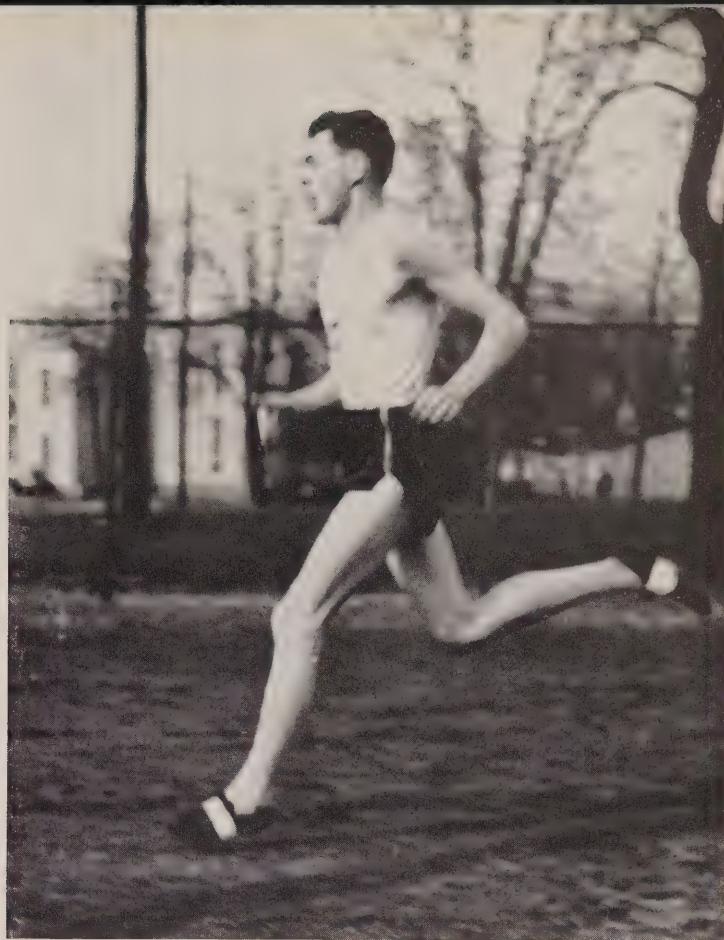

■ The entire 1939 varsity baseball squad, with the exception of pitcher Yencer and infielder Longaker, returned as a nucleus for the team of 1940. The infield was composed of Stan Culp at first, Bart Clark at second, Luke Bowdler at short, and Phil Nelson at third. Auck, Peters, Sharrock, Nickols, Timko, and Prasher represented an abundance of fly-chasers.

Bob Brodbeck, veteran catcher, was sidelined by a football injury, but his loss was partially offset by the arrival of Miller and Henning, sophomore receivers.

On the hill, "Zip" Zalar and "Babe" Griebel, veterans, were linked with John Harmon, a sophomore, to form a staff that needed only the poise that comes from experience to make it a really good one.

Track

■ It was left to "Automatic Ronnie" Force to salvage the 1940 Heidelberg track season when a scarcity of candidates nullified any chance of a regular schedule. And what a job he did!

In mid-March he journeyed to Chicago to place fifth in a field of fifty-five in the A. A. U. two-mile event—a very creditable performance. Later in the spring, he capped his career with a splendid two-mile showing in Cleveland when he ran second to the great Taisto Maki in a Finnish Relief Fund event there.

In addition to Force, Jim Black, high jumper, and Dick Lautzenheiser, quarter-miler, entered several of the conference meets and acquitted themselves well.

Intramural Sports

■ The Heidelberg Literary Society followed up its success of 1938 by winning the 1939 honors, thus setting the stage for a bitter fight in 1940 with the Comstock Trophy as the prize. The Exes also had two legs on the cup and both sides pursued their campaigns with a vengeance. The Heids romped through speedball with unexpected ease, but were slowed up in ping-pong, where seniors Lautzenheiser and Weir suffered their first defeat in doubles. The wearers of the purple snapped back into stride quickly, however, by taking basketball with the Exes dropping a close race to the Aps for second place. Oddly enough the Heids placed only one man on the All-Intramural five, picked for the first time by members of the KIL sports staff. Warren Hiltiker, flashy forward, was the man who crashed the select five, which also included Fred Andrews and "Salty" Peters of the Exes, and Dick Brodbeck and "Treeze" Sharrock of the Aps, the latter gaining the center position over Heid Zechiel by the smallest possible margin.

With volleyball, baseball, handball, and tennis yet to be played, the race remained wide open with the high-flying Heids being conceded the inside track only in another of their specialties, volleyball.

Fencing Club

■ Under the dashing leadership of M. Robert Shaw, the Fencing Club started its second year with enthusiasm and stiff muscles. The less competent were weeded out, but the remainder continued to practice regularly with steadily increasing skill. In an assembly program, stout-hearted members acquitted themselves nobly, with a daring demonstration of swordplay, past and present, including the medieval "main gauche" method. The fencers rose to true dramatic heights with an exhibition before the Shakespeare class of the duelling scene from Hamlet, when Hamlet was barely able to defeat Laertes. The new members returned home in the spring, anxious to demonstrate their new skill to their old friends.

■ Cold or hot, wet or dry, it makes no difference when good clean fun and plenty of exercise are in the offing. All year 'round these girls are keen for sports and frolic.

They started out full of enthusiasm at the beginning of the year with a hike and picnic at Wagner's Grove. All the freshman girls were invited and were told about the organization to entice them into joining.

In the course of the year four tournaments took place in which teams considered evenly matched were chosen from the members. Before deep winter set in, hockey was the main sport. Then, having shinnied on their sides as well as all over the other girls' shins, they started to battle with their hands in volleyball. Following the footsteps of the volleyball tournament, the basketball season dribbled in with all its glory only to be cut short by a sojourn to another campus. In early spring, baseball revived that wholesome, traditional spirit of competition between France and Williard with Keller as a new element to increase the rivalry.

Besides the regular home schedule, the two basketball teams, a volleyball team, and a ping pong team travelled southward in March as the guests of the athletic organization for women on the Otterbein campus. They spent the day eating and playing, and returned home happy for the opportunity to rest their weary bodies.

Extending its hospitality to thirty high schools from the neighborhood of Tiffin, the W.A.A. sponsored its annual High School Play Day in May. From morn till night the girls played and romped, but they were ever alert when it was time for the picnic on the back lawn of Williard Hall.

Each girl received an award for her activity: for four years, a gold locket crested with a red "H"; for three years, a large "H"; for two years, a small "H"; and for one year, a numeral. So came the end of the season with some girls eager for more games and sports, and others very tired after a year of vigorous and energetic activity.

JANET SOMERS

In the Merry Month of May

With the blossoms and newly-budded trees of spring, May Day with its picturesque festivity came to the campus of Heidelberg once again.

Before hundreds of spectators attracted by the colorful pageant and amid a bevy of flowers and formals, the charming queen was crowned by her equally charming attendant. Their maids formed a beautiful background against the blossom-bedecked trellis as they watched the court revels, ending in the traditional May Pole dance accompanied by the orchestra's rendition of "Waltz of the Flowers." After the recessional, the visiting alumni and other guests, as well as students, crossed the street to the tea held by Dr. and Mrs. Josephson on their lawn.

Homecoming

■ Before the Homecoming game on October 14, the Student Princess, Miss Krammes, and her two attendants, Miss Hum and Miss Ackerman, led the traditional parade through Tiffin streets, culminating with the entrance into Armstrong Field. The highlight of this important day came just before the kick-off when the long open car bearing the royalty slowly drove to the grandstand. After their speeches welcoming the alumni home once more, the girls ascended to the seats of honor, from which they led the encouragement of the Student Princesses in their struggle with Ohio Northern.

May Day

■ Miss Doris Hum, lovely and talented, was chosen by the student body as May Queen 1940 to reign in the traditional festivities. Her gracious attendant, Miss Jeanne Ackerman, invested her with royalty by placing on her head the crown of flowers.

The seniors travel the college path for the last time.
